YVETTE CASTER ENJOYS A SLICE OF LUXE ISLAND LIFE IN THE CYCLADES

KENSHŌ PSAROU
MYKONOS, GREECE

€€€€

I'M SPLASHING ABOUT in my personal jacuzzi when I suddenly hear music. Past Psarou Beach, on the twinkling Aegean, billionaires bob about on their mega-yachts, and thick shards of sunlight cut through the veranda's bamboo pergola onto the chubby, light brown loungers. It's Greek Orthodox hymns, wafting from the simple, white-painted stone chapel set in the hills to my side.

I'm at Kenshō Psarou, a five-star hotel with 29 luxury rooms and suites on the Greek island of Mykonos. It's a sunlit sanctuary where you can sprawl by the shore, cocktail in hand, gorge on fresh seafood, compete with celebs for the perfect Insta pic, or retreat to your plush, cavernous room. Mykonos and Kenshō are beloved by the glam squad – expect sophisticated sunseekers in headscarves, huge shades and floaty silk maxis at breakfast. >
